Accurate Tank Completes an Odyssey of Its Own

What do you do when many years of diesel use starts clogging your filters? That was the question facing the owners of the Chicago icon, Odyssey Cruises. The problem was a sludge build up inside the two 5,000 gallon onboard storage tanks. They contracted Accurate Tank to fix the problem. Docked at Navy Pier, the tanks were emptied to standby tanker truck. A trained technician cleaned the inside of the tanks using a specialized power washing system. The sludge and rinse water was vacuumed to another tanker to be hauled for processing. The diesel was returned to the tanks after thorough filtering. The entire operation took 15 hours and the Odyssey was again ready to sail Lake Michigan.
